Empty days are filled with new hope, but when the calls abruptly end a devastated Anna is compelled to surprising action to fill the unbearable void.

LONG SYNOPSIS

An elderly widow, Anna Marshall (Harris), lives in isolation following the death of her beloved husband. With no friends and an estranged son, Anna is a senior citizen alone in the world—obsolete and discarded.

The only visitor since her husband's funeral is her sympathetic neighbor, Julia (Fallon). But with seemingly little in common their polite tea break ends far too quickly, leaving Anna unable to ask for the companionship she desperately longs for as her nervous neighbor quickly leaves to attend to her children.

Anna's empty days are filled with restless routines and ticking clocks until a silent stranger calls. With this, Anna's phone rings every day promptly at 3:30pm. At first Anna finds the calls intrusive and tells the stranger the calls are invading her privacy, but as the calls continue, Anna finds herself waiting for her phone to ring. When the stranger calls 15 minutes late one afternoon, Anna realizes just how dependent she has become on the calls and does something that completely surprises herself. She talks to the stranger: "Who are you? Are you a man or a woman? Are you married?"

In desperation, Anna begins to befriend her prankster. An odd and mysterious friendship evolves as Anna recounts the events of her days and her life's experiences with startling honesty. The daily phone calls grow in duration—lasting hours with Anna feeling newly inspired and connected if only by a silent phone call.

Happy weeks and months pass until New Years Eve arrives. Dressed to the nines, Anna pops a cork and toasts her silent friend. At the stroke of midnight, the silence is broken at last when the stranger speaks. Anna is startled—overjoyed and incredulous. But Anna's phone never rings again. Devastated, she turns to the phone company frantic to find the name and number of her caller. The manager tells Anna that the number is private and that by law he is unable to reveal the caller's name or number. Inconsolable, he encourages Anna to get a private number and assures her that if she does, she'll never be 'bothered' again. Anna's return to her bleak life of isolation. With no one to talk to and with no other recourse, Anna is compelled to action that surprises none as much as herself.

ABOUT THE PRODUCTION

Queens Picture, in association with Factor 8 Productions, is proud to present, The Secret Friend, a 35mm short film. The screenplay, adapted from the short story by Brazilian writer, João Silvério Trevisan, was written by award winning director, Flavio Alves, whose last film, Even in My Dreams, received the Golden Ace award at the Las Vegas Film Festival.

The Secret Friend, along with Alves' past films, deals with issues and problems the elderly population faces on a daily basis. The struggles they battle, the stereotypes they encounter and the general misunderstandings they are met with. Alves has chosen to focus on these issues in his innovative and creative films. It is his goal of the director to challenge the view of the audience regarding elderly characters in roles that allow the exploration of their personalities in unexpected ways.

The film's star, Viola Harris, whose films include: Sex and the City 2 (2010); Choke (2008); Sydney Pollack's The Slender Thread (1965), and Woody Allen's Deconstructing Harry (1997), plays the role of "Anna Marshall," a reclusive, elderly widow living in quiet desperation until she begins to receive daily calls from a silent stranger.

Rounding out our star-studded cast is Siobhan Fallon, who plays Julia. Fallon's feature film appearances include: New in Town (2009); The Negotiator (1998); Men in Black (1997); Striptease (1996); and Forrest Gump (1994). In addition, Fallon has appeared 20 times on Saturday Night Live.

The Secret Friend is the result of a remarkable collaborative effort from an outstanding crew, whose work behind the scenes has made the film possible. It was shot in New York City over the course of five days. The goal is to feature this film at all major film festivals including Sundance, Cannes, Berlin, Toronto, Venice and others as opportunities arise.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

During filming, I often thought of my childhood in Rio de Janeiro and the integral role my grandmother played in my upbringing. It was genuinely inspiring to watch her bound over the hurdles that come with age. Although I now live on the opposite side of the globe, more than three decades later, I still remember her strength and perseverance.

Soon after I arrived in the United States, I realized that loneliness and depression are common themes in the elderly universe. Without the help of close relatives, some have no one to call for help or solace and furthermore have no meaningful structures of community or support. Aging often brings illness, reduced income and loss of family and friends. So rather than ignore the problems facing the aging communities, I decided to build upon them by creating films that push these issues into the spotlight.

The Secret Friend is my third film and just like the others I have directed, the elderly character is the protagonist. I came across the story about 12 years ago after reading a collection of short stories written by famous Brazilian author, João Silvério Trevisan. The story that follows Anna, an elderly widow, spoke to me in a very powerful way. After my initial reading, I remember thinking it would make a wonderful film but never dreamed it would make it to the big screen, much less, that I would be the one to direct it.

So I was both surprised and delighted when Trevisan agreed to allow me to shoot the film. I had just finished film school and was very enthusiastic about my first project in the professional arena. However, I never imagined the journey that awaited me. I was fortunate enough to have a great producer, Nicholas Eisenberg, who helped me bring the film alive. I have also been blessed with an amazing crew and talented cast who gave everything they had to this project. Through the invaluable collaboration, we began to reshape the film from a short story to a timeless tale.

Now that the film is ready to be shown to people around the world, I hope that it will not only be of entertainment value but will also become a window into the lives of an often invisible segment of society.

– Director Flavio Alves, New York

ABOUT THE DIRECTOR

Flavio Alves is a writer, screenwriter, producer, and film director. He is best known for his courageous book Toque de Silêncio (Call To Silence), an autobiographical account of his experiences as a gay man in the Brazilian navy.

To escape the increasingly hostile environment he was personally encountering in Brazil upon the publication of his book, Alves sought political asylum in the United States. His claims of receiving death threats were supported by various human rights organizations, LGBT activists, as well as former São Paulo Mayor Marta Suplicy.

In 1998, with the help of the Immigrants and Refugee Rights Clinic at New York University's School of Law, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service agreed to grant Alves political asylum. Shortly thereafter, he attended Columbia University in New York City where he earned an undergraduate degree in political science. After graduating, Alves worked as an assistant to then-New York Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton (D-NY) and to Congressman Anthony Weiner (D-NY).

In 2006, Alves left politics and returned to school to study film production at New York University. While there he wrote and directed three short films, including his final project, Even in My Dreams, which received the Technisphere Award from NYU for Best Student Film and later screened at a variety of domestic and international film festivals.

In 2008, Alves founded Queens Picture LLC, a New York-based production company. He soon contacted Brazilian author João Silvério Trevisan and optioned the rights to produce one of his many works, The Secret Friend.

PRODUCER'S STATEMENT

I first met Flavio in the winter of 2009. He had a script, a few crewmembers and a very small budget. He asked me to join the production team and I was invited to the first crew meeting. Since that time, this project has grown and evolved in almost every way imaginable.

If you had asked me then where I thought we would be today with this amazing film, I could not have imagined such success. Through the inevitable ups and downs that come with making a film, we were able to come away with something that is in every way, a work of art. From the hours of work that went into the planning, scouting, interviews and phone calls, to the delicate details of the wardrobe and production design, to the endless fine-tuning of the script, to the remarkable acting. Never have I experience such a collaborative effort result in something so wonderful.

For me, the process of making this film has been more than a job. It has been a journey. As production progressed, the crew and I became more and more attached to the story itself and more specifically the character of "Anna." It seemed that whoever we talked to, who ever we began to explain the story to, they could immediately relate her character to someone they knew. "Oh, that sounds like my neighbor Bill," they would say. "I always see him walking but no one ever talks to him." It was then that I realized how important this story really is, how many "Anna's" there are in the world and how many people would be able to relate to the story.

We have come so far from that first production meeting in January and I could not be happier with the work of everyone involved with this project. This has been by far the most enjoyable group of professionals that I have ever had the opportunity to work with and I will be able to use this production as a model for other work for years to come.

ABOUT THE DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY

Adam McDaid is based dually in New York and Los Angeles. Adam believes cinematography is an art form that requires a unique ability to see minute details that advance elements of a story, characters, and emotion. Adam traces his innate gift back to his frequent childhood daydreaming, for which he was often chastised.

Since receiving a Masters of Fine Art in Cinematography from the American Film Institute in 2006, Adam has kept busy shooting narratives, commercials, music videos and documentaries—in all formats. Last summer, Adam had the opportunity to work under the tutelage of Janusz Kaminski as a camera intern on Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull. He worked on Una y Otra Vez, which recently was accepted into Slamdance 2009. Adam is a visual storyteller who looks for projects that are challenging, collaborative, and that can push the medium forward. And he has not stopped daydreaming.
